A Woman Imitator Starts Westward to Make the Globe-Girdling Race More Exciting.

"Nellie Bly " is the name at the very head of the passenger-list of the Hamburg palace steamship Angusta Victoria on her present trip.
Why shouldn't it be? Is she not the first of her sex to undertake the circumnavigation of Many admirers and friends of the daring little Miss Bly will watch her progress with much interest. The number of people who have put a girdle around the earth is not and includes only men. Col. Knox, who has been "around" twice, and has written charming books to boys on his adventures, consumed eighteen months in each trip. But he says:

"I believe Miss Bly can and will do it in seventy-five days. In fact I once figured out a trip to be done in seventy days. The sailing is plain and clear from New York to Singapore on the Indian mail route, but between there and Hong Kong the monsoon may oppose and impede the progress of the fair mariner. The wind blows one way six months in the year and reverses for the other six. Miss Bly will sail against the wind through the China Sea, and the time lost in that way is three or four days, but a 'norther' will help her amazinely through DEPEN SURE SHE'LL DO IT. Chauncey M. Depew is enthusiastic over Miss Bly's trip. "I have all confidence in her grit and capacity," said he, "and I haven't the slightest doubt that she will accomplish what

MISS BLY'S CONFIDENCE.

The most remarkable thing about the trip is the characteristic nonchalance of Miss Bly and the matter-of-course manner in which she set about the work. She was as methodical, unperturbed and unraftled as though her "assignment" had been only to go over to Jersey and write up " a reception.

The Boston people were rapturous over Miss Nellie's undertaiding and shout: "A hit, a pal-pable hit, for Miss Bly and THE WOLLD."

A. T. Anderson, the tourist, is quoted by the Cleveland Leader as saying: "Even the ingenuity of The World could not devise a more attractive enterprise. It will be very valuable as a test of transportation facilities on the most far-reaching scale." The editor of the Leader is sanguine of Miss Biy's success, for he has just received a letter from Siam, 14,000 miles away, which was only thirty days on its way, and Senator V. C. Taylor "Jules Verne didn't count on THE World when he made the eighty-day schedule of Phiness Fogg's imaginary trip. THE WORLD'S pace is too fast even for Verne's imagination." ON SWIFT AUGUSTA VICTORIA.

Capt. Albers, a stanch admirer of his pretty ittle passenger, assured her that the Augusta Victoria would do her best to land her in Southampton as sneedily as possible, and added that he believed he could gain a whole day on Miss Bly's schedule at London.

And so Miss Bly, with one gown, for her gripack was too small to contain the second one, is on her glorious way, with the kindliest thoughts of a million admirers hovering about her.

Nobody doubts for an instant that if any with her. Capt. Albers, a stanch admirer of his pretty

Editor Walker, of the Cosmopolitan, read the story and he was aflame at once. He despatched a messenger for another plucky newspaper woman, Miss Elizabeth Bisland, who is a New Orleans creole by birth, and a bright and wideawake member of a wideawake profession. Bhe has written for THE WORLD at times, and is now

She responded to her editor's call, and was astonished at his proposition that she enter the lists as a competitor with Miss Bly. Mr. Walker wanted her to start immediately, only he would send her West instead of East.

Miss Bislaud considered, accepted, and from a study of the time-tables concluded that she Originates in acrofulous tains in the blood. Hence the proper method by which to cure catairh, is to purify the slood. Its many disagreeable symptoms and the danger of developing into bronchitis or that terribly fatal discase, consumption, are entirely removed by Hood's Sar-separilla, which cores catarrh by purifying the blood: it also tones up the system and greatly improves the general health. This would land her in Hong Kong just four days after the European steamship had sailed. and she would have to wait there eight or ten days till the arrival of the Cathay, on which Miss Bly hopes to reach the British-Chinese city, and then, both fair tourists being "stalled," they might chum it together for three days, spending Christmas together on the little island which marks one of the spots in the Empire on which the sun never sets.

NELLIE BLY'S BOTTE REVERSED. This is the " half-way house" in the tour, but Miss Bly would get away three or four days ahead of Miss Bisland, whose time-table is rather perversely against her.

Miss Bisland's schedule takes her on almost exactly the same route as that taken by the Bly, only reversed, and she hopes to reach Marseilles on Sunday, Jan. 21, 1890. If she does, she may be able to reach Havre and sail for New fork on the same day. If she is a day late she will take a steamer from Southampton on Monday, Jan. 23, and reach New York, Jan. 29. That would be two days later than the arrival of Nellie Bly, and Miss Bly rejected the chedule adopted by her Southern commetitor after careful study and calculation, being convinced that the eastward cruise was the quicker

Reveral of them suggested that if necessary they would pay a license fee; but it is not proba-ble that the Aldermen will require them to pay for a license out of their meagre incomes.

Meantime active preparations are being made for the mass-meeting next Monday night, Brooks's Assembly Rooms, on Broome street, is one of the most spacious halls in that locality, one of the most spacious halls in that locality, and it is expected that it will be crowded.

Speeches will be made in Italian, German and English, and a petition residing the injustice done to them will be drawn up, signed and forwarded to the Board of Aldermen.

A committee of German musicians, consisting of John Helwig, Nicholas Keller. Daniel Harft, Jacob Burson, Henry Landsor and John Walter, called upon Mayor Grant yesterday and requested him to use his influence in having the unjust law repealed.

They represented 500 musicians, they said, whose families were suffering from the men being thrown out of work. Aldermen Goetz accompanied the men, and put in a good word for them.

morning contains a long address to the Irish people setting forth the grievances of Ireland, and asks for assistance to "enable the Irish patriots to fight their enemy in a manner that would be effective."

The address is headed with the quotation:

"For more than seven centuries, "says the address," England has waged a releaties war of extermination on the Irish people, a war which for the atrocities committed and for Pharisaical cant and hypocrise has no equal in the history of mankind. And all through those dark ages the scene has been the same Ireland never beaten in the field has always been overthrown by the peridy of the enemy and by her own childlike faith in the honor of the foe."
